A P P L Y	The artist Henri Matisse once said, “There are always flowers for those who want to see them.” Our Gospel Reading for this coming Sunday contains Jesus’ powerful, yet often hard to understand words, from the Sermon on the Mount. Jesus shares his thoughts on being blessed, ones that might seem contrary to what the world sees. We are blessed no matter our circumstances and wherever we find ourselves, because God is always close to us. Whether we are hopeless or hope-filled, dancing or mourning, God is there. When have you experienced a difficult season in your life and could still see the flowers in the midst of the weeds?
P R A Y	Loving God-Help us to realize how blessed we are, both by those things in our lives that are clearly evident and also by that, which can be harder at times to see. May your presence and promise that is always with us sustain us in our journeys each day. Amen.
